Arrival: When you get to the Garden, enter through the main gate by the kiosk. The meeting place will be in the conference room. If you don't know where that is, the person in the kiosk can point the way. Entrance is free on Saturday.

Parking: Our meeting coincides with Cal Day (a very busy University event) so parking will be very limited at the garden. I highly recommend that you show up early so that you can get a parking spot. Parking is free at the Garden lot on Saturday. If you cannot find parking at the Garden lot, try the Lawrence Hall of Science (1 Centennial Drive, Berkeley, CA 94720, (510) 642-5132) up the hill. From there, you can take a free shuttle down to the Garden. I'm not sure that the Lawrence Hall of Science lot is free so please check carefully.

Alternatively, you can take a taxi. It costs about $10 for a trip from the Downtown Berkeley BART station to the Garden.

What to bring:

Plants/bulbs/seeds for show and tell, to share, exchange, and sale if you wish. If you're selling plants, please donate a portion of the proceeds (suggested 15%) to the Garden.

A computer with a slideshow of geophyte photos. I will leave my computer out and let it run through my bulb photos. This will go on throughout the day to facilitate discussion. Anyone wishing to join this effort is very welcome. In the evening there will be a bulb slideshow. If you wish to show some slides, please bring them either on your computer or on a memory stick/CD/DVD. There will be a projector for you to use.
